

THE PROBLEMS OF MOBILITY IN URBAN AREAS

Summary

The article points at increasing transportation and ecological problems in urban areas that require to be properly solved within the framework of transport policy. Selected elements of EU transport policy were presented that indicate the solutions in his area. They involve increasing the share of common transport means and limiting individual car transport. The examples of solutions that raise the standard of common transport services and contribute to the carrying out of the idea of eco-development of cities were also presented.