The European Union transport policy – effects and goals

EC common transport policy has been realized by nearly over 50 years. Until now the basic objective of that policy- creation of common transport market has not been fully reached. The European Commission, institution responsible for EU common transport policy, carried out in 2006 mid- term review of 2001 Transport White Paper issues. In the paper the opinion on the EU transport policy effects has been presented as well as justification for its redefinition. The newest issues on the UE transport policy were included.
