ACCESS TO THE REGIONAL TRANSPORT SERVICES MARKET

Summary

One of the most complex matters in the national transport economy is the regional transport issue. Transport requirements are caused by many factors; human needs, movement requirements and natural communication mobility. It’s not an easy decision to choose an appropriate regional mean of transport.

It’s often caused by lack of other transport connections. Low level of microbus traveling for instance is the result of inappropriate developed railway net and a low availability in this service. This issue can cause a difficulty in the social exclusion pre-venting.

That’s why it’s relevant to create optimal conditions for suitable partnership coop-eration between the province, district and the local administration. It should be based on common transport rules which unite all the parts and stress safety, effectiveness and also protect natural environment.

Well organized regional transport policy will lead to many advantages and also create many future options.
