THE RESEARCH ON THE ACCESSIBILITY OF CAR-ROAD NETWORK

Summary

At the beginning the article presents the research determining accessibility the classification of its aspects and methods of measurement. The results of empirical research were presented next, particularly those concerning the significance of accessibility changes connected with the development of highways in Spain. They improved accessibility between regions, and enabled the location of industrial plants in corridors created by the highways as well as the spatial concentration of same-sector companies.