ASSESSMENT OF THE ACTUAL STATE AND CONDITIONS OF TOURISM DEVELOPMENT IN MILICKI DISTRICT

Summary

The aim of the study is to show the actual state and conditions of tourism development in Milicki district. The results indicate that Milicz region has huge development potential for tourism, because it is one of especially predestined regions of Lower Silesia. Its characteristic feature is a really unusual complex of carp ponds in the nature reserve of „Stawy Milickie”, which in 1995 was included on the list of the protected areas under the Ramsau Convention. It covers an area of 8000 hectares and there are many species of plants, wild animals and birds. Diversified nature and culture of Milicki district can offer a lot to potential tourist. Looking ahead, it is going to become one of the most popular areas on weekend recreation and relaxation for local and international tourists. It has touristic potential (attractions, infrastructure), which is a chance for this region development.
