THE SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT
OF TOURISM ON PROTECTED AREAS

Summary

The development of tourism must aim at the sustainable tourism, which takes into account the natural and cultural values and gives basis for the economic development of the tourist regions. For the tourism needs particularly good are areas with the most natural environment advantage, among them many are law protected. Ecosystems of these areas are especially sensitive for the human interference. On the nature protected areas one should develop ecotourism, it means, a tourism that only in slight degree influences the natural environment and preserved plant and animal species. Therefore one should work out and implement a program which uses the protected areas for the tourism, with the participation of nature historians, ecologists, local society and the tourism promoters. The main goal of the program should be such a forming of the tourism on the protected areas, which makes possible preserving and protection of the nature and also respects the culture and contributes to the increasing of the incomes of the local population.
