

RAILWAY INTERMODAL TRANSPORT ON THE WEST-EAST-WEST ROUTE

Summary

This article is consisting of four sections. Some changes in a branch structure on the transport market is presented in its first section. The development of the intermodal transport on the West-East-West route was presented in its second section. The third its section was intended for the recommendation of the intermodal transport development in the international communication. A significance of the container type terminals and logistics centers in the development of the combined transport was indicated in the fourth section.

Translated by Jerzy Wronka