INNOVATIONS AND THE LEVEL OF ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT OF POLISH REGIONS

Summary

Over recent years, the topic of regional innovation policy has received growing attention. As a result of this there is a need to prove that the level of region innovation can affect its economic development. The aim of the article was to examine if innovative regions are better developed than the others. The results of the survey proved that the average level of GDP per capita is higher for the innovative regions.

Translated by Adam Adamczyk